

Special Summary of the 11 years of dictatorship under Hugo Chavez's regime as a response to his speech in Denmark. Parte II

Published on January 1, 2010 by Ovario y Ovario II

6.- "I have witnessed very harsh scenes of repression on the streets of Copenhagen. You don't see that in Venezuela, you don't see that in Cuba, you don't see that in Ecuador." Hugo Chavez Frias

People of Denmark and other friendly countries, to end this summary, we want to show you the most revealing images of what this regime does. The only way we have to show the world what happens in Venezuela is through the lense of a camera, until the day Chavez takes that away from us.

On the following images you will see how us, the Venezuelan citizens, not only have seen the abuse, the harassment and the violation of our rights through the lense of the few media channels we have left but each and every one of us who have participated in pacifist and non-violent marches (as a right we have under our Constitution) have also, in one way or another, lived all that personally.

Below, in chronological order, you will see images of events from 2002 on which clearly show the abuse by Hugo Chavez's regime. So every time you see a wounded person, a physically abused woman or a lifeless body, you can remember the words of that great hypocrite, the sick and shameless dictator Hugo Chavez when he had the nerve to say in Denmark: "I have witnessed very harsh scenes of repression on the streets of Copenhagen. You don't see that in Venezuela, you don't see that in Cuba, you don't see that in Ecuador.” You can be the judge:

First of all, an important clue: In January 2009, Chavez ordered to spray protesting students with “the good toxic gas.”

These are the tear gas bombs to which Chavez referred to when he ordered his sorry followers to attack students and other demonstrators with “the good toxic gas”

According to statistics on “defense goods” exports presented by the Commerce State Secretary to the Spain’s Congress Defense Commission: Venezuela purchased 155.942 Euros in police material in 2008, 111.450 Euros of which were destined to the acquisition of tear gas. (And since that is not enough, China also sells “the good toxic gas” to Venezuela.)

As written by Rocio San Miguel in her article “The Good Gas from Spain” in 2009: Spain cannot continue to sell tear gas to Venezuela to be used for the violation of human rights in the hands of the government officials against peaceful demonstrators who oppose the government politics. Spain cannot continue to profit from the sell of “the good gas” used for Venezuela’s internal repression. And it cannot for two reasons: a) Because the Defense Material Foreign Trade Laws approved by Spain’s Parliament in 2007 prohibits the sells of weapons to countries in which there is a real risk for these weapons to contribute to the violation of human rights, to the perpetuation of the armed conflicts and the deterioration of its sustainable development. b) Because Spain breaks the European Union’s Code of Conduct for the effective control of weapons trade.” This is a human rights violation of Venezuelans and a pitched and unbalanced battle between State and unarmed Venezuelans.

Rocio San Miguel’s article continues: “In Venezuela protests are criminalized. 2,200 people have been prosecuted in 9 years for protesting, according to recent PROVEA documentation (PROVEA: Venezuelan Program in Education-Action in Human Rights, a non-governmental organization.) This means a 244 prosecuted people per year. In other words, every 36 hours a new judicial process is started against a person who protests in Venezuela, most of the time, people who have been attacked with the tear gas used by the government officials.

More than a civil and political rights violation, this is a war between State and its citizens. It is an intimidation tactic developed in a generalized and systematic way against those who are seen as opponents of the government in a clear and very well designed tactic of national segregation.”

Let us start with the summary of the shameful acts of 2002, in the hands of Chavez’s regime so we don’t go too far back.

April 11, 2002: Llaguno overpass bridge. Violent assassination of civilians during a pacifist march. Armed paramilitary groups who are supporters of the Chavez’s regime, along with officials of the National Armed Forces massacred innocent demonstrators on this date. 19 deaths and hundreds of severely wounded civilians were the result of confrontations between armed chavistas and innocent unarmed civilians carrying flags and banners.

The mass of participants, more than 1,200,000 people on the streets was what scared Chavez and his allies.

Student begs for mercy (showing the sign of “love and peace” with both hands) before armed chavistas during the bloody confrontations

Here you can see clearly how the National Guard officials throw tear gas bombs against the marching civilians

This is how the bombs were thrown by the henchmen, by kicking them with extreme force against the demonstrators

Chavistas shooting at defenseless and unarmed civilians

Richard Peñalver one of the assassins

Chavista gun men over the Llaguno overpass bridge

The only decent policemen who were never bought by the regime while trying to dodge the bullets from the chavistas

No one minute of mercy from the officials and chavistas gun men

One of the many chavistas assassins shooting at the peaceful demonstrators

With the flag hung upside down Venezuelans say: SOS

As you can imagine, the policemen who defended the civilians - who participated in the march - against the chavistas gun men were arrested by the regime when they were doing their job, protecting the Venezuelan citizens. Many of them remain incarcerated. The chavistas gun men were never arrested or prosecuted.

To match the video of “Prohibited to forget” of the Group 11, please visit:

http://www.dailymotion.com/video/x8mqmq_prohibido-olvidar-grupo11_news

Jesus Mohamed Espinosa, one of the 19 murdered civilians

Another murdered civilian

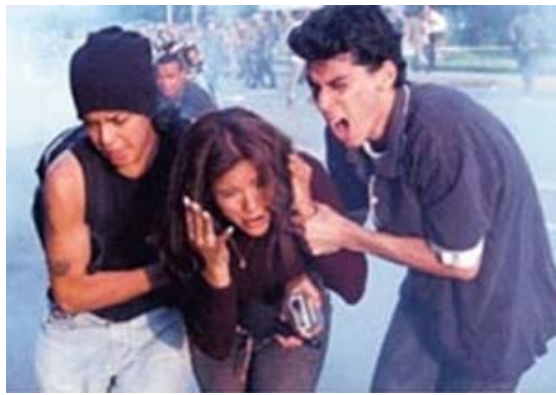

Victim of the massacre

To read the list of victims of the April 11, 2002 massacre, please visit:

<http://ovario.wordpress.com/articulos/2000-2009-2/victimas-del-11-de-abril-de-2002/>

September 20, 2002: with tear gas and pellets the National Guard violently dispersed a vigil organized by the civil community around the offices of PDVSA (Venezuelan Oil Company) in Chuao, which resulted in 3 wounded people among them a camera man from the Miranda State Governor’s Office and many victims of tear gas intoxication. After being restrained by more than 85 officials from the National Guard, the participants from Fuerza Solidaria continued to Plaza Altamira to carry out the vigil.

www.ovario.wordpress.com

Three wounded and many victims of tear gas intoxication in Chuao and La Carlota

The National Guard fires against unarmed innocent and peaceful demonstrators

Panic and chaos among the demonstrators

Innocent civilians armed with a flag and the right to protest according to our Constitution, were mercilessly attacked by the National Guard officials

The tear gas attack was so severe, demonstrators could not even see where they were going

Victims of all ages and genders

The assistance of other demonstrators was not enough

Many got lost in the gas clouds

Gas and desperation was all you could breathe in the area

People ran in all directions looking for cover

October 10, 2002: more than a million people marched in Caracas demanding Chavez's resignation. A group of chavistas ambushed the stream of cars that were traveling to the city for the "Toma de Caracas" ("Regaining Caracas"), blocking both accesses of the La Cabrera tunnel. Sheltered by the darkness of the night, the chavistas attacked the participants by shooting and throwing stones at them leaving 6 wounded. The attack started at 4am under the noses of the traitorous National Guard of the 29 Station located on the side of one of the tunnel's access.

Coward ambush by chavistas in front of the disloyal National Guard

People marched for the “Toma de Caracas” (“Regain Caracas”)

October 21, 2002: National shutdown on 80% of the country. Confrontation between opposing civilians and the paid chavistas in Guaparo.

90% of the Carabobo State participated in the national shutdown

80% of Venezuela participated in the nacional shutdown

October 22, 2002: 14 high rank military officials declared themselves in disobedience from the Plaza Francia in Altamira and called civilians to disavow Chavez’s regime.

Military officials in disobedience

Military officials at Plaza Francia in Altamira

Hundreds of people gathered at the plaza day and night to support the military officials in disobedience

October 24, 2002: seven high rank officials from the National Guard joined the dissident officials at the plaza.

People continued to support the military in disobedience

November 1, 2002: father of the young Jesus Mohamed Espinoza Capote murder on April 11, 2002, who was on hunger strike in front of the Supreme Court was brutally attacked by chavistas.

Mohamed Espinoza in hunger strike

Chavistas attack with tear gas

Chavistas attacked civilians who supported Mohamed Espinoza hunger strike

November 2, 2002: seven governors demanded a referendum and early elections.

Governors during meeting

November 4, 2002: chavistas violently attacked the opposition march and also ambushed the civilians carrying the signatures (supporting the referendum) to the CNE (National Elections Committee). 70 injured, 9 wounded by gun shots.

Over 2 millions signatures supporting the referendum were collected and delivered to the CNE

Chavistas attacked the peaceful march with stones and gun shots

In spite of the ambush and violent attacks by chavistas, the signatures were delivered

November 10, 2002: Patricia Poleo's car, (well known Venezuelan opposition journalist and politician) was shot at.

December 3, 2002: cowardly attacks from the National Guard officials per the regime's order. “Maritza Diaz Vivas, the heroic wife of the Venezuelan Military Colonel Gustavo Alberto Díaz Vivas, one of the brave military in disobedience in Altamira, is brutally attacked by General Jesus Villegas Solarte, another big macho man who likes to attack defenseless and unarmed women. Maritza and hundreds of other brave Venezuelan women confronted the tyrant and his gorillas, ready to give up their lives for freedom and democracy.”

A shattered country

National Guard officials attacked a peaceful demonstration that gathered at the Meritocracia plaza in Chuao, attending to a call by Unapretol and Gente de Petroleo organizations which resulted in wounded journalists and defenseless civilians.

Mercifulness repression

Cowardly attacks against women by the National Guard officials

December 6, 2002: Massacre in Plaza Altamira. Shooting in Plaza Altamira left 3 deaths and 29 wounded.

Chaos and terror in Plaza Altamira in the hands of chavistas paramilitary

Innocent civilian murdered by chavistas paramilitary

An innocent civilian was sitting on this chair when it was hit by a bullet

As usual, peaceful demonstrators were armed with just flags

Another innocent civilian murdered at the plaza

December 12, 2002: PDVSA worker's assembly (Venezuelan Oil Company) decided to make the strike more radical until Chavez resigns and elections take place as a response to the destitution of the company's managers.

PDVSA workers express their dissatisfaction

More than 5,000 PDVSA workers protest

December 17, 2002: residents of the city of Valencia, Carabobo State, overflowed the Cedeño Avenue demanding Chavez's resignation.

A message to the Carabobo State people by General Néstor Gonzalez Gonzalez

Valencia residents take the streets

Valencia residents took off from 10 different locations to meet at the Cedeño Avenue

January 3, 2003: barricades, bombs and armored cars from the police, National Guard and chavistas paramilitary resulted in 2 deaths and several wounded during ambush to an opposition march at Los Proceres.

Chavistas and National Guard officials attack peaceful march

Numerous tear gas attacks against participants

Armed chavistas shoot peaceful demonstrators

One of the murdered civilians

January 16 and 17, 2003: Violence and forceful entry to the Panamco and Polar plants in Valencia. Brutal attacked against workers from the military officials.

Enraged attacked against workers who tried to protect the plants. Zero respect or consideration toward workers was shown by military officials.

The National Guard broke into the facilities and took over. Cowardly attacks against defenseless women

General Luis Felipe Acosta Carlez led a forceful entry at the Coca-Cola and Polar beer plants without a court order. When approached by TV reporters, this brilliant official burped onto the microphone and said he had followed orders from Hugo Chavez

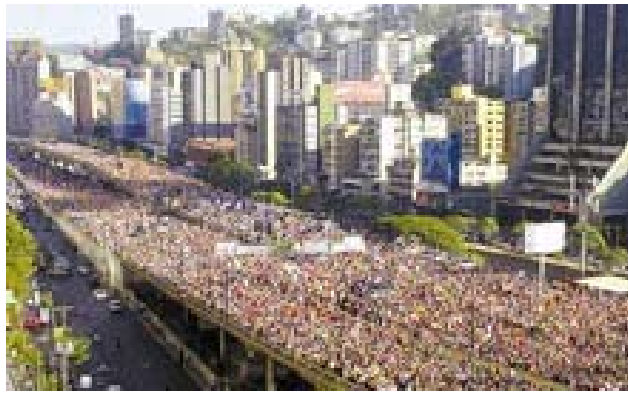

Elba de Diamante brutally beaten by the National Guard officials when she tried to calm the workers' uproar at the gates of the invaded plant

January 21, 2003: One person murdered identified as Carlos Garcia Arrieta, 28 years old, and 25 civilians wounded by bullets, pellets and other blunt objects is the result of the confrontations between chavistas and the opposition at Los Valles del Tuy, Miranda State.

The bloodthirsty chavistas always armed to the teeth. Bunch of low lives

January 31, 2003: National shutdown and massive demonstration to protest against Chavez's threats to punish the freedom of speech of RCTV, Globovision and Televen (Venezuelan TV stations.)

Massive demonstration to defend the Venezuelan media

February 2, 2003: Chavistas create chaos in some areas of Caracas such as Catia, El Valle and El Centro to sabotage the “Firmazo” (Big opposition signing.) Chavistas covering their faces tried to sabotage the recollection of signatures.

El Firmazo took place even though chavistas started disturbances

February 5, 2003: Chavistas violently attacked Televen journalists in front of PDVSA in Yagua.

Chavistas attacked journalists and their cars

February 18, 2003: tortured and murdered three young dissident military officials.

Circled are the three murdered dissidents

Second Corporal. (Army) Darwin Aquello

Second Corporal (Aviation) Félix Pinto Eras

Second Corporal (Navy) Angel Salas

February 22, 2003: judge Gisela Hernandez ordered house arrest for the president of Fedecamaras (Venezuelan Federation of Chambers of Commerce and Venezuelan Production) Carlos Fernandez for charges of: REBELLION, COUNTRY BETRAYAL,

INSTIGATION TO COMMIT A CRIME, GANGING AND DESTRUCTION IN RELATION TO HIS PARTICIPATION AT THE NATIONAL SHUTDOWN THAT STARTED ON DECEMBER 2. If this is not a dictatorship, someone please tell me what it is.

Carlos Fernandez when he was taken to the Court House

February 28, 2003: the District Attorney's Office appealed the house arrest for Carlos Fernandez.

March 1, 2003: the District Attorney's Office requested jail for Carlos Fernandez.

May 1, 2003: One death and 6 wounded at a Labor Day March organized by CTV (Venezuelan Workers Confederation) at the O'Leary Plaza in Caracas. Chavistas dressed as officials of the regime shot at the participants.

1 dead and 6 wounded

May 24, 2003: cross fire at a western area of Caracas, (Catiazo.) Venezuelan paramilitary and guerrilla named Tupamaros and Carapaicas entrenched in Catia tried to stop an opposition concentration resulting in 1 death and 22 wounded.

A bullet wounded victim is taken to the hospital in Catia.

June 12, 2003: Once more Chavez threatens to fire managers at PDVSA who allow the reintegration of former employees who participated in the national shutdown between December 2002 and February 2003.

June 12, 2003: National march demanding resources for the proper functioning of universities. More than 20 wounded was the result of the disturbances registered at the Petarazo, event celebrated in Caracas when the opposition gathered around 6,000 people.

Chavista violence creates chaos once more

The police, National Guard and chavistas created disturbances by throwing tear gas bombs at the participants

June 16, 2003: demonstrations on Lebrum Street in Petare by Chavez supporters. Officials tried to blame the police for them.

Chavista violence on the streets

June 28, 2003: Marta Colomina Reyero, Venezuelan journalist who has been the victim of intimidation, threats and violent attacks many times for being part of the opposition, was attacked again at 5am when she was on her way to the TV station Televen where she has a morning show.

This is the car after the chavista attack

July 10, 2003: chavistas attack the Carabobo State Executives Association with tear gas bombs.

In the middle of the chaos, a car ran over a University of Carabobo professor who was in the area during the disturbance

Chavista violence

August 11, 2003: Former pilot of Chavez's reports the transfer of the FARC boss to Venezuela.

October 4, 2003: Battle in Semerucos. The National Guard with long guns and bombs as well as by using insults and offensive language toward the ladies, attacked the people living at Semerucos. The officials violently entered the homes of PDVSA employees leaving 6 people severely wounded and around 500 people affected by the tear gas. The soldiers made fun of the crying mothers who begged them to let them bring out their children while they chased them around and threatened them with raping them.

Residents of Semerucos are evicted

Unnecessary violence against elderly residents

The National Guard soldiers, as usual, so macho...

Physical abuse against residents of all ages

Evidence of physical abuse against defenseless women

December 6, 2003: A year after the Altamira massacre, chavistas came back to destroy the plaza. They destroyed religious images and X-mas ornaments, did graffiti on the walls, and physically attacked the Mayor of Caracas Leopoldo López.

Chavistas take over plaza Altamira

Chavistas attack Caracas Mayor Leopoldo López

Violent attacks from chavistas

January 18, 2004: Chavistas attacked members of the political party MAS with pipes, stones and bullets in Downtown Caracas.

Members of MAS alter the attack by the beasts

Chavistas set the Cathedral of Los Teques on fire

January 29, 2004: seven wounded during chavistas disturbances in Merida.

February 27, 2004: Brutal National Guard attack on civilians. One of the worst attacks in the history of Venezuela. The result was several deaths, and many wounded, tortured and arrested civilians. During the following days, from the 28 of February through the beginning of March, areas of the entire country experienced shutdowns called “guarimbas”.

Another day that marked with mourning the lives of many Venezuelans

Violence against women by female soldiers. What a shame.

Unjustified violence against demonstrators ordered by the sick Venezuelan dictator, Chavez the shame of Latin America

These officials are beasts...

Foto: FLASH JC

Unbelievable human aberrations...

March 1, 2004: unjustified attacks against innocent civilians by the National Guard and other chavistas organizations are an every day nightmare for Venezuelans. Those organizations which are supposed to protect the Venezuelan citizens are filled with sick, bloodthirsty and henchmen like Chavez and the Castros who's only job is to torture whoever they feel like it. These creatures are not human beings, they are beasts that Chavez's regime has at its disposal to abuse, harass, and torture whoever they want while he has the shameless guts to say during his hypocritical, worthless and evil speech: "I have witnessed very harsh scenes of repression on the streets of Copenhagen. You don't see that in Venezuela."

See for yourself... These photos give you an idea about what Venezuelans go through, so you can understand what the monster Chavez is capable of doing to a human being, well that we know of. Same as other bloodthirsty aberrations like the Castro brothers, Hitler or any of the dictators he admires for being as sick as he is.

This is a young man who was tortured by the National Guard in front of his wife when they were leaving a friends' house to go back home after a dinner party.

With no reason, they hit him with their fire arms, punched him and kicked him on the street, dragged him inside their official truck, continued to torture him inside the truck, and finally dumped him on a highway

The mother of the victim writes: "Two convoys of the National Guard with no less than 15 men each drove by the house of some friends of ours in Altamira, where my son and his wife had been having dinner, when they were getting in their car to go home, only two blocks from me. Without a reason or explanation they grabbed my son, hit him, punched him, kicked him and dragged him into the terror vehicle. Once there, they hit him with the butt and the cannon of their rifles all over his body, they hit him with their boots, their helmets, fists and everything else they found. My son never saw their faces because they were wearing anti-gas masks which gave them the idea to detonate tear gas bombs inside the convoy. My son wears eye glasses and they enjoyed taking them away from him and smashing them with their feet. They didn't stop laughing while they tortured him. When they got to the Cota Mil freeway, in the area of El Marques, these awful men threw him on the asphalt and gave him a farewell beating."

This is another example of the mistreatment Venezuelans suffer in the hands of the National Guard. This is a young student who participated at a peaceful demonstration

The victim's aunt writes: “This photo shows the wounds on my nephew's back from when he was arrested by the National Guard for being in the area of La Floresta on Monday March 1st, protesting at around 1pm as it is his right. The wounds were the result of the beating with different objects and the detonation of a tear gas bomb at less than 3 feet from him. They also spread some kind of itching powder on his skin and made him kneel to sing “Chavez won't leave.” They insulted him and hit him on the head with their helmets before they dragged him inside a truck to take him away next to other young men and an under age boy. After keeping them in El Paraíso, CORE 5 for many hours, at around 6:30pm they let them go.”

March 30, 2004: Soldiers punished for not being chavistas. On this day, a fire inside a disciplinary room in Fuerte Mara, located in La Guajira, Zulia State, resulted in eight soldiers severely wounded: Ángel Pedreáñez (20), Alcides Martínez (20), Orlando Bustamante (20), César Cábar (23), Abraham Mena (19) y Eusebio Reyes Gálvez (19), Ángel Enrique Medina y Mauricio Pulgar Parra.

“The victims were taken to the Hospital Universitario of Maracaibo. Soldier Orlando Bustamante and Alcides Martínez arrived with 2° y 3° degree burns on more than 50% of their bodies, specially from the waist up. Bustamante presented 2° y 3° degree burns on his thorax, arms and face.

Ángel Pedreáñez presented severe wounds and was taken to the Burn Victims Unit at the Coromoto Hospital. Pedreáñez presented superficial and deep burns like in the respiratory system: nostrils, larynx, throat, inside the mouth, lungs, and also on 72% of his body: head, thorax, hips and both legs. He had to be hooked to a mechanical ventilator.

Later the other seven soldiers were taken to medical centers in Caracas.”

Hugo Chavez played down the incident stating that it had being “an accident and just a small fire inside a room.” He also noted that the burns the soldiers had suffered were minor.

Two of the burn victims

Orlando Bustamante died on April 4, 2004

Ángel Pedreáñez died on May 4, 2004

“Ángel Pedreáñez’s father, Ender Pedreáñez, active fireman for 37 years at the Fire Department in Maracaibo, reported that “the National Armed Forces were hiding the truth” and that the soldiers “were punished for signing against Chavez.” With a broken voice, a sad look and a photograph of his son in his hand, Elsa Mendoza de Pedreáñez recalled that she had spoken with her son. “He told me: ‘Mom, buy me some shorts, some sneakers and a tank top to get out of here.’ He said that there was a lieutenant who made his life miserable and wanted to kill him because he refused to deliver weapons and ammunition to the Colombian guerrilla.”

“Some of the witnesses stated that not only the room but also the bodies of the soldiers exuded gunpowder smell. ‘The gunpowder smell inside the cell was very strong. Maybe they were showered with gunpowder before they set them on fire. That is why there are no combustible remains inside the cell’ noted the newspaper’s source.”

June 3 and 4, 2004: 1 death and several wounded due to the activation of the referendum reversal.

Chavista violence on the streets

As usual, the macho henchmen with their diabolic faces covered

CNE activated the Referendum reversal

July 11, 2004: Chavistas attack people gathered to support Henrique Capriles with tear gas bombs and stones leaving three wounded civilians.

August 8, 2004: Violence in La Candelaria lasted 8 days. Chavistas attacked the opposition with glass bottles, stones and tear gas bombs, decapitated saint statues, set vehicles on fire and attacked the police station.

The Nacional Guard in action

The devil is loose

Chavistas' violence

August 16, 2004: People gathered at the Plaza Altamira to protest about the Referendum reversal fraud were attacked by chavistas gunmen which resulted in 12 wounded people and the murder of Maritza Ron who only carried a flag in her hand.

Chavistas identified

Chaos and terror at the Plaza Altamira when chavistas started to shot at people

These assassins are protected by the regime of Chavez because it is the regime that pays them to attack the opposition.

Here they are, the animals responsible for un death and 12 wounded: Marcos Martinez in red and Pedro Posche in blue

Maritza Ron was shot and died that same night due to the failure of vital organs caused by the bullet

Here is where Maritza Ron, 62, fell down here after being shot by chavistas

12 people were wounded by chavistas

Senior citizen also shot by chavistas

Peaceful demonstrators show the blood stains on their flag from innocent victims

Demonstrators accused the OAS of getting paid by the regime to accept the election's fraud

December 8, 2004: hawkers' protest in Downtown Caracas. Before the elections, Chavez wanted to make these people happy so they would vote for him so they let them have their merchandise on the sidewalks everywhere but once the elections were over, when they did not need them anymore, they kicked them out and they rebelled. Chavez's regime uses and abuses Venezuelans of all colors and classes but the abuse is worse with poor people because they are desperate and believe their lies.

Hawkers fight for their rights

Hawkers set buses on fire in protest for being attacked and unlawfully taken away

National Guard attacked hawkers who just want to make a living selling their stuff on the streets

Hawkers protest

The wonderful National Guard shoots at innocent and unarmed civilians like if they were in a war

Hawkers protest results in many wounded and tons of debris and garbage

March 10, 2005: thieves steal virgin statues from Plaza Altamira

Neighbors are sure to have seen officials in a green Jeep driving around the plaza at around 4am

July 30, 2005: More violence from chavistas. Patricia Poleo, Venezuelan journalist in exile today, broke the police's security ring and tried to get to the CNE but that resulted in attacks from the bloodthirsty police, National Guard and chavistas who used tear gas bombs and water hoses to weaken protesters. They protested about the CNE fraud

Chavistas tried to stop opposition march

Patricia Poléo in the middle of the disturbance

Police abuse against civilians

Bloodthirsty policemen, National Guard soldiers and chavistas brutally attacked marching participants

Chavistas created chaos again

August 27, 2005: peaceful march ends in violence again when chavistas attack participants.

Protesters armed with whistles, banners and flags... what a dangerous group of people!

As it was stated on a written statement by a demonstration participant:

- “the deepest pain that any human can feel when his/her fundamental rights are violated, when his/her willpower and spirit are broken, when he/she realizes how impotent it is not to have anybody to turn to”
- “with the same enthusiasm as always, with our whistles, flags and banners we sang slogans”
- “a rain of bottles, stones, sticks, marbles, and even detonating rockets fell over us causing panic, anxiety and impotence for such an ambush”
- “I felt sad to see the hate reflected on their faces, their dirty slogans... so much hate... When did we ever feel hate toward our brothers and sisters?”

Chavista violence on the streets

The police watched how chavistas attacked innocent civilians and did nothing

Bitter and miserable chavistas created chaos y panic as usual

In Venezuela there are no rights for those who are not chavistas

September 8, 2005: Chavistas viciously attack a church in Mariche

September 11, 2005: miners' protest results in 10 wounded in Bolivar.

More victims of the chavista violence

September 20, 2005: 7 wounded and 9 arrested in Maiquetía's demonstrations. Sidor workers protest causes a stoppage in Guayana.

Chavistas love to create chaos when there is a protest

Peaceful protest in Sidor causes stoppage in Guayana

4 de octubre de 2005: Newspaper La Razon raided.

November 30, 2005: more disturbance in Trujillo

Disturbance in the hands of chavistas result in one death and one wounded

December 1, 2005: National Guard and chavistas create chaos and violence

Disturbances start small and grow

January 23, 2006: March titled: “UNITED TO SAVE DEMOCRACY.”

23 enero de 2006: Marcha: “UNIDOS PARA SALVAR LA DEMOCRACIA”.
“Protest against the evil and incompetent regime of Chavez Frías who buys people off all over the world but doesn’t use our money to solve the problems of the Venezuelan people.” Venezuelans showed up to commemorate that January 23, 1958 “when united, Venezuelans finally defeated the militarist dictatorship and opened up the hope for a democratic path.”

This was a miracle in the history of the Venezuelan demonstrations. Opposition took the streets to celebrate Jan. 23, 1958 and no incidents were reported.

February 4, 2006: This insane being suffers persecution complex... US doesn’t pay attention to us.

“We need a million armed Venezuelans” says paranoid Chavez

February 11, 2006: Mayor of Chacao was kidnapped for two hours by “so called” students when attended a forum at the University of Carabobo. The antisocials carried fire arms and tear gas bombs which they detonated inside the room where the forum took place to terrorize the 300 people who attended the event. They brutally stroke some of the journalists and took away all the memory cards from their cameras. Lopez said: “Unfortunately, what we have here is a search for excuses to act violently. Apparently, right now whoever is not chavista is considered a CIA agent.” The kidnappers who were supposed to be students at that university did not release the hostages until they reached a still unknown negotiation agreement with the university.

Leopoldo López and the rest of the hostages when they were released

This pig, Andres Olmos was reported to be responsible for the kidnap

February 13, 2006: an order of arrest for journalist Ibéyise Pacheco was issued and a suit was filed against journalist Marianela Salazar.

To see a partial list of radio stations and TV channels that have been closed down by the dictatorial regime of Chavez, please go to:

<http://ovario.wordpress.com/articulos/2000-2009-2/radio-emisoras-y-canales-de-television-clausurados-por-el-regimen-de-chavez/>

March 16 and 17, 2006: At the Inter American Press Association (SIP), the Venezuelan media communication editors and journalists reported the lack of judicial safety in www.ovario.wordpress.com

Venezuela. Gonzalo Marroquín, president of the Press Freedom Committee of the Inter American Press Association (SIP) stated that the judicial power in Venezuela is used to harass journalists. Reports like this have been filed since 2000 and the situation has not improved.

Freedom of Speech does not exist in Venezuela anymore

March 27, 2006: Military training for women starts. Like we already mentioned, the dictator Chavez tells the world with a straight face that his is a pacifist government... (yeah, and then we wake up.) Look at the following photos and make your own conclusions.

In Charallave, the National Armed Forces paid the (starving) so called aspiring female soldiers Bs. 160.000 + lunch to be allowed to train them on how to kill. The plan is to train 2,400,000 aspiring soldiers and that way turn them into reservists available to Chavez at any time. Like Venezuela does not have enough violence.

Poor starving women being trained for war by the National Armed Forces

Militia training for starving women who would do anything for a buck

Once more Chavez's regime takes advantage of poor women by paying them to inflict violence in them...

March 29, 2006: Former PDVSA employees protest for their jobs. They were chavistas, took over the company but still were let go when the regime did not need them anymore.

Protestants crucify themselves

April 4, 2006: Protests for the killing of the brothers John, Kevin and Jason Faddoul Diab who were kidnapped along with their driver Miguel Rivas. They were found 400 Km. from their home. The bodies already decomposing.

Faddoul brothers, kidnapped and found dead not far from their homes

The entire country in protest for lack of safety

The whole country mourns the tragedy of the Faddoul brothers

Protests in the entire country for the national lack of safety

Laying for life

June 2, 2006: Students from the University of Carabobo marched in Valencia to protest for the university autonomy to support the University of Los Andes.

Peaceful protest by the University of Carabobo students

June 7, 2006: The attacks against freedom of speech continue: Radio station Radio 810 from Valencia is closed down by the regime.

Tras 56 años en el aire Radio 810 AM "La Suprema" en Valencia fue cerrada por Conatel.

After 58 years on the air, Radio 810AM “La Suprema” was closed down by Conatel (National Committee of Telecommunication)

June 9, 2006: the Carabobo police arrested 8 demonstrators who protested in Flor Amarillo for the needs of the area like the streets that need repairs and the property invaders.

Neighbors were protesting peacefully when they were attacked by the police

The regime dos not listen to anybody but if they complain, they go to jail

The abuse in this country at all levels is indescribable

June 25, 2006: National Guard brutally attacked the University of Los Andes.

Protest at the University of Los Andes continue

August 17, 2006: the jails in Venezuela are considered the most dangerous jails in the world. You would not believe what happens there.

Torture at the Ramo Verde Prison

November 30, 2006: Drunk and crazed chavistas get into accidents and kill each other.

Red pure red

September 8, 2006: paramilitary chavistas attack walk organized by Mayor Rosales.

Shots, stones and glass bottle chavistas stopped peaceful march

Violent groups attacked Rosales walk

Chavista violence attacks again leaving innocent victims. ("I won't be able to see well again.")

May 29, 2007: on the 27 of May dictator Chavez ordered the closing of the RCTV Channel because it spoke the truth about what happens in Venezuela. People take the streets to protest but they run into an indescribable violence in the hands of the regime. More than 200 were arrested... it was that day when the students' movement was born. Protests continued for days confronting strong repression.

Like beasts... they lie in ambush...

Attack to innocent civilians with “the whale” (water hose)

No mercy...

Unarmed kids protest by singing...

Disturbances due to the closing of RCTV a major Venezuelan TV station

July 15, 2007: regime officials and chavistas stopped the demonstrators from getting to the Plaza de Caracas as planned.

Police and the National Guard stopped the peaceful demonstration from continuing

Violent attack against students from police

July 25, 2007: Beating at La Victoria. The savage reds violently attacked the participants of a march that started in Caracas destined to get to La Victoria to protest for the reform of the Venezuelan Constitution by Chavez. The plan was to visit the town, talk to people and give away pamphlet to inform people but chavistas ambushed the march. They started with their insults and finished by violently beating many of the participants. Due to the violence and chaos, the photos that we could take do not reflect what happened. The good ones were blurred. The following photos do not reflect what truly happened but you can see the chavistas verbally attacking people and laughing at us.

Chavistas were having a ball, like the abnormal creatures they are. Sadist animals that enjoy hurting innocent people

As usual, we were armed with hope and flags

What a surprise, what started peacefully ended with chavista violence...

The chavistas started with insults and finished by beating up people

September 28, 2007: one wounded by a bullet during a protest by oil workers.

The union members reported how the police violently attacked them and shot at them

October 23, 2007: Students protest harassed by chavistas. The National Guard threw tear gas bombs against the students. Several students were wounded.

Ambushed student march

The police threw tear gas bombs before the students could reach the National Assembly

October 25, 2007: the undergraduate student Yon Goicochea, well known for his critical position against Chavez and for his open disagreement to the constitutional reform pushed by the regime, was brutally attacked and wounded when he was leaving a public event in Caracas. Chavistas beat him up so badly, they caused facial lesions and even broke his nose.

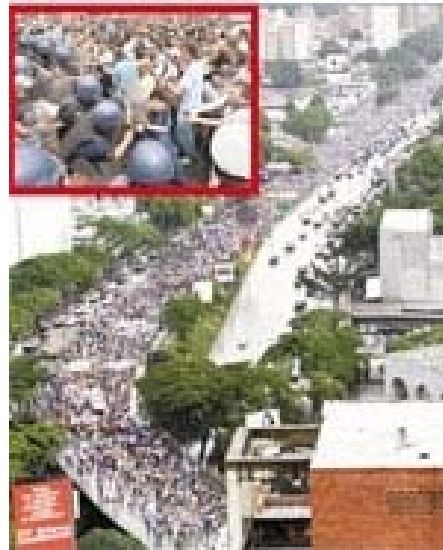

Attack against Yon Goicochea by sick chavistas during a forum he attended

Goicochea attacked by chavistas

Yon Goicochéa interviewed after the attack

massive students march ambushed before reaching its destination

November 2, 2007: Chaos and violence during students march, tear gas bombs thrown against students by chavistas

Violent repression during students protest

A management leader at the Pedagogico studies center in Caracas, Raima López, was wounded by the National Guard

3 police security rings of 300 officers each, a whale (water hose) 4 cages, several metal fences and 1 National Guard security ring welcomed the students march. You don't see this much in wars...

November 3, 2007: two deaths during demonstrations at the University of Zulia.

Young kid murdered during the disturbances

The big macho soldiers armed to the teeth against peaceful and defenseless students

November 6, 2007: Students protest against threats in Caracas, Lara, Aragua, Carabobo, Tachira and Merida.

The abuse of power was unheard of. These organisms, Armed Forces and Metropolitan Police are an embarrassment

November 7, 2007: one death and nine wounded during the confrontations at the UCV (Central University of Venezuela.)

These are the henchmen hired by Chavez to silence the opposition. These animals came on bikes to shoot at our students inside the school

These beasts are called: Chavez's pack of hounds. Professional killers hired by the regime

One of the chavista pigs...

The brutal killers, holding fire arms aim at defenseless students. What a bunch of cowards

Another heartless killer...

These killers have no soul. Why can't they show their faces, if they're so macho?

The chavista monsters destroyed everything... under Chavez's protective wing

November 12, 2007: Police attacked students in Barinas leaving 23 wounded.

Heavy repression on the streets

What would you call this physical abuse? Look at this animal kicking a young student... but according to the monster, heartless, human aberration Chavez, you don't see that in Venezuela!

These are practically kids who are treated like criminals when the real criminals, the chavistas go around killing people with the regime's support and protection

The physical abuse is unbelievable. You can see the wounds from the pellets shot by the officials. Thank God they were pellets ...

November 23, 2007: Police brutally attacks Monteavila students

Armed to the teeth, these idiots... they live in some fantasy. They must imagine they're brave soldiers in the middle of a war. Bunch of unhappy cowards

As you can see, one more time, the National Guard inflicting pain as ordered by the regime

They treat our kids like criminals

Chaos in the surrounding areas...

More and more victims...

November 27, 2007: 1 death and 80 arrested in Carabobo and Aragua.

More protests

More and more officials to fight the flags, the whistles and the banners...

More physical abuse to quiet the students

These evil regime men hurt people left and right. That is what Chavez pays them to do

These students took the streets to peacefully protest with the right given to all of us by the constitution

These macho men hate women and they love to hurt them... no wonder people say they are castrated when they join the regime

January 23, 2008: Mart to the CNE to demand respect to the Venezuelan Constitution and the Activation of the Amnesty Law Referendum which benefits all out prisoners and persecuted regime opponents. Confrontation leaves many tear gas inhalation victims.

More officials than soldiers in a war. These are our law abiding citizens being attacked by the regime!

These defenseless participants attacked with tear gas... how democratic is that?

What a waste. With all the criminals sunning free in Venezuela. But they are protected because they are chavistas.

Such an honorable profession... In any other country, the policemen are admired and appreciated for their work and integrity. In Venezuela the police officers are filthy rats...

February 9, 2008: protest to support TV channel Globovision

Citizens take the streets to show support to Globovision which Chavez threatens to close down

Chavez cannot stand that Globovision tells it like it is Multitud exige que no cierren el canal.

February 15, 2008: Attack to the Nunciatura Apostólica (Apostolic Nuncio's Residence)

Look at the respect chavistas have for religious buildings and remember how Chavez talked about the flags of Christ, equality, love, justice and humanism. Such a hypocrite. Do you get how far his cynicism goes?

Chavez's love for God and humanity is immensurable...

March 5, 2008: National Guard repression in Sidor.

One of the many victims...

Armed chavistas against unarmed civilians

May 4, 2008: Armed shutdown in the area 23 de Enero.

These are the killers paid by Chavez to terrorize the opposition. Plain guerrilla members who have taken over entire towns. These are called “La Piedrita”, very macho chickens with their faces covered...

May 14, 2008: one wounded by a bullet and other 20 affected by the tear gas in Zulia.

As you can see, they’re all cowards who cannot show their faces. They come out to kill when they’re called by the regime

May 28, 2008: innocent student wounded by chavistas when she was entering the Metro station after the march. All consequence of the hate the TV programs the regime has on the air such as La Hojilla, always urging chavistas to hate and attack the opposition. The biggest hate instigator is the sick aberration Hugo Chavez.

She was hurt when she was going into the subway station by herself

July 12, 2008: The protests at the University of Los Andes were initiated when students from the Nutrition and Dietetics Department protested before the Dean's Office to request the substitution of the school director. Douglas Rojas, a 21 year old student who was wounded by the police dies that same night as a consequence of the head wound. The protest was attacked by the police and the Venezuelan terrorist group "Los Tupamaros."

Douglas Rojas Jimenez shot in the head by the police during the protest

Murdered student: Douglas Rojas Jimenez

To dissipate demonstrations, the police usually shoot pellets or rubber bullets. The marbles are a new thing that leaves no evidence and that way, the shooters can accuse the innocent protesters of shooting each other alleging that home made fire arms were used.

July 15, 2008: The death of Douglas Rojas Jimenez sparked a series of demonstrations in which again, the streets were the stage for a war between the armed police and the unarmed students. Police threw stones and tear gas bombs.

Students mourn Douglas' death

Citizens take the streets to protest for the murdered student

Students protest for the kind of abuse they have to suffer in the hands of the regime

July 17, 2008: 16 wounded during disturbances at the university UPEL in Rubio

September 23, de 2008: Chavistas guided by Lina Ron attack the TV station Globovisión.

This ugly bitch is a guerrilla member, Chavez best friend. She dyes her hair blond... come on! Listen Lina, that hair color belongs to the Empire, you fake!

October 1, 2008: Chavez's paid assassins murder the student Julio Soto who was the president of the university centers federation FCU at the university of Zulia (LUZ.)

This is how Julio Soto's car was left at the scene by the chavista assassins

October 3, 2008: people protest Soto's death in Carabobo. Students are disgusted by the wave of paid assassins that have appeared in the country since Chavez. There have been many murders of students in the whole country which cases have been prematurely closed without even finding out what was the motive. The regime is in charge of that, covering up the killing of the opposition.

Julio Soto murdered by the regime

Students protest for the lack of safety in the whole country

November 27, 2008: 3 wounded after Capriles proclamation.

As usual, chavistas attack civilians. They're simply bitter antisocials who hate the human kind

December 10, 2008: Mayor's office attacked by chavistas.

Graffiti on the walls of the Mayor's office

January 20, 2009: Police ambushed students peaceful demonstration.

Once again, the machotes from La Piedrita, the chavistas who attacked the march

Just like in a war, officials shooting against unarmed students with their hands painted white and raised up in the air

January 22, 2009: Repression against students, 3 wounded and 9 arrested during Peace walk.

These images seem to be from a war. Peaceful protests by unarmed civilians do not deserve to be attacked this way by the so DEMOCRATIC regime of Chavez's. The violation of the Venezuelan citizens' Human Rights in this country need to be known by the entire world.

These young students only carry flags and banners!

This is pure cruelty

January 24, 2009: Another murdered student at the university of Los Andes, ULA.

Inhuman abuse against innocent students when the country is full of criminals

Chavez's regime is killing our students, the future of our country

January 27, 2009: guerrilla group “Los Tupamaros” attacked the university of Merida. The corrupt Minister of Justice El Aissami denied the involvement of the National Guard in the attack to the university of Tachira when there are photos that prove it.

National Guard broke into the university of Tachira

Look at these photos... and they still deny it

February 5, 2009: 21 arrested in student protests in Aragua.

Students say they don't buy the regime's act anymore

Look at the castrated chavistas attacking women...

March 28, 2009: tear gas against people in Chacao... the good gas...

More and more tear gas...

So they shut up...

May 1st, 2009: Labor Day protest violently repressed by Chavez's regime. Tons of civilians affected by tear gas.

Brutal attack against hundreds of workers who protested for their rights

Senior citizens affected by the tear gas thrown by chavistas

Wounded civilians unable to get up after violent attacks

May 21, 2009: chavistas covering their faces terrorized people at the UCV, Central University of Venezuela

July 2, 2009: chavistas attack the newspaper El Carabobeño. More attempts to silence our freedom of speech through intimidation and fear.

July 3, 2009: chavistas attack offices of the newspaper Notitarde. Paid by the regime because Chavez is going to the bathroom in his under pants. He cannot silence the voices anymore... not even the ones inside his head.

Chavistas continue to attack the country to try to silence the opposition but we are too many...

Antisocial, bitter and sick chavistas. Go back to your burrows!

July 15, 2009: the small town of Curiepe bravely confronted the National Guard to defend their rights.

Glory to the Brave Town!

These sad soldier armed to the teeth...

These uniforms look like garbage cans... That's the only thing chavistas have done right! They put themselves inside these uniforms that look like garbage cans because they are garbage... Where did they get those hideous uniforms? Chavez must have paid a lot of money for them without even getting the insult! The same thing happened when the King of Spain gave him a T-shirt that said to him AGAIN: "Why don't you shut up?" And Chavez is so stupid, he laughed! He was being insulted by the same person a second time, and he didn't even get it!

In case you don't remember...

What a chump!

A pissed off town of Curiepe...

Such a big truck... these chavistas are so macho... against unarmed civilians

Civilians of all ages came out to defend their town

August 1, 2009: civilians protest for the closing of the radio station CNB. Just another attack against the freedom of speech but thank God Chavez's regime is democratic. How funny.

Look at the officer's hand spraying pepper spray on the face of a student

Demonstrators blocked the freeway Autopista del Este

Lina Ron, the “blond” guerrilla member friend of Chavez and her group of terrorists, attacked the TV station Globovision with tear gas bombs because they felt like it. Many employees were affected by the toxic gas, including a pregnant woman who needed medical assistance. One female guard received a head wound.

To watch the video, go to this page:

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=SnfAgsKBJEU>

Look at this beauty! The “blond” guerrilla buddy buddy with Chavez... they make a good couple since they are both bloodthirsty... made for each other.

August 14, 2009: chavistas violently attack journalists from the Cadena Capriles during a peaceful protest against the new education law.

ATACADOS Y HERIDOS periodistas de la Cadena Capriles

Periodistas de los canales Liberes, Puntos, Libre y El Mundo fueron atacados y heridos a golpes y patadas por seguidores chavistas y personal de la televisión nacional "Vida TV", quienes atacaron en el centro de Caracas a periodistas que iban a cubrir y al propio conductor de Liberes Héctor Chávez. El día pasado los integrantes de la cadena recibieron los primeros golpes, cuando repartieron folletos contra la nueva Ley de Educación, denunciando que en ella se "intenta la destrucción" de la escuela y el "aprovechamiento" de los recursos y profesores que enseñan desde el Colegio, además de agredirlos y atacar con bombas de agua y piedras por ubicarse y por "la lealtad" de la PUC. Además, en la día de la violencia se guarda silencio a la normativa y se promueve la idea de la noche del episodio de violencia durante el ataque al periodista denunciando que lo que se está haciendo es "una masacre" para Chávez (2009-10).

Look how these macho men attack the female reporter you see on the bottom right corner. Aren't they "muy machos"?

Here's that female reporter getting medical assistance

Victim of the chavista attacks

Another victim of the chavista attacks

Another victim of the chavista attacks

Another poor soul being attacked by chavistas
Otro pobre atacado por estas bestias.

This is how the peaceful protest started. There's no excuse for this protest to end so violently. So many wounded, so many people hurt in the hands of sick chavistas

We're so silly, we continue to think that in a country so full of sick chavistas we can find justice

Look at the weapons we carry... banners made out of paper, not even something hard for us to defend ourselves

August 21, 2009: chavistas attacked Puerto Cabello's councilor with stones and glass bottles.

What a bunch of animals...

August 22, 2009: peaceful protest against new education law attacked with tear gas bombs and peddles by police and National Guard.

Emphatic no to the new education law. Peaceful protest ends in tragedy thanks to the antisocial beasts, the chavistas

Once more a massive protest...

People had no idea what was waiting for them...

You can only see these images in a war...

The mass of people protesting scared the regime so they had to attack the only thing they can do

The amount of tear gas bombs thrown by the National Guard, the police and chavistas was never witnessed before

The attacked peaceful civilians with “the good gas” as requested by the monster Chavez

The attack was vicious

The toxic gases affected everybody

People of all ages affected by the tear gas

Hundreds of people fainted and could not continue

Desperate mother trying to calm her baby down who was affected by the toxic gases inside the subway

A huge mass of people took the streets to peacefully protest until the National Guard, under Chavez's kiss ass so called colonel Antonio Benavides violated articles 60 and 328 of the Venezuelan Constitution (related to the right to protest peacefully) and brutally attacked the demonstrators.

The police shot peddles at people standing on the Libertador bridge while the “whale” sprayed the civilians who were standing around the uphill end of Mariperez. These actions took place after the toxic tear gas was sprayed around the security rings, pushing people to take cover toward the east of the Avenida Libertador. The forth attack from the National Guard was not televised because the chavistas cut Globovision's cable to stop the channel transmission.

To watch part of the brutal attack against civilians from the National Guard, please go to this address:

http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=GojwyrZU8vc&feature=player_embedded

What do you think the bloodthirsty dictator did when he found out what his kiss ass did? He rewarded the loser Benavides with the 2nd class Libertador Order three days later. That shows you what a sick monster this sick ass is.

That honorable job, to attack innocent people deserved a medal. These human aberrations applaud one another like monkeys... not to insult the monkeys...

But like I said before, this sick and evil bloodthirsty Chavez had the guts to give a speech in Denmark criticizing that country because he had seen “very harsh repression scenes on the streets of Copenhagen.” The reason is that when he was taken to the airport all drugged out inside his straight jacket he saw the kiss asses from the National Guard, the police and the Armed Forces abusing and attacking civilians HERE in Venezuela. What you saw was not Denmark, you idiot! You were so high on Lithium that you had no idea you were still in Venezuela!

August 29, 2009: Chavista sabotage against Ledezma. The group M-28 broke into the Auditorium of the Architecture department of the Central University of Venezuela and called Antonio Ledezma a killer.

If the wonderful gentleman Ledezma is a killer, what can we call Chavez and his followers? What a joke!

September 3, 2009: Protests in Magdaleno for lack of safety on the streets.

This awful regime doesn't listen to the needs of the Venezuelan people

September 5, 2009: march organized to protest the right to protest and also to deliver a document to the District Attorney's Office. Due to the media focus on the unconstitutional attacks against the civilians who participated in the protest last August, this time there were no policemen, no National Guard and no arrests. Since the regime was the focus of the news for almost a month, they wanted to look good so they did not come out to ambush the march.

The people took the streets one more time... and this time chavistas were ordered not to attack “Democracy and freedom. We are the absolute majority. Do not be afraid!

Together we will win!

Yes we can!

We marched once more to demand our rights

September 24, 2009: How many demonstrations, protests, walks up to date?

En los primeros ocho meses del año
2.079 manifestaciones
440 detenidos y 461 lesionados

Las asociaciones civiles de COPEM, Provee y Espacio Público, presentaron un balance que demuestra que las manifestaciones se han incrementado en Venezuela. En lo que va de año se han registrado 2.079 protestas que han dejado 440 detenidos y 461 lesionados. Zulia fue el estado con mayor cantidad de manifestaciones, seguido de Caracas, Miranda y Carabobo (P117)

Nuevos tiempos... nuevos Quijotes

Con Misa de Nuevos Misioneros (González), Lázaro Fonseca, Julio Rivera y Richard Escovar (González).
 Hacer cubiertas bustos de prisioneros de varias plazas valedoranas, un reconocimiento de la sociedad civil y el movimiento estudiantil a los derechos emergentes de la oposición venezolana. (P118)

In the first 8 months of the year we had 2,079 protests, 440 arrested and 461 wounded

October 27, 2009: The University of Los Andes' professors were on strike and 90% of them stop academic activities to protest against the regime for neglecting the commitments they had with the teaching staff and the lack of a fair budget for the Venezuelan universities.

Professors' strike at the University of Los Andes (ULA)

November 12, 2009: professors take the streets at the University of Carabobo.

November 18, 2009: closing the streets and avenues in Vargas and Caracas, taxi drivers and neighbors protested about the killing of drivers.

Public transportation drivers protest for the lack of safety and the killing of drivers

The lack of safety for these drivers is horrible

November 21, 2009: students start a hunger strike to demand that the OAS (Organization of American States) visits Venezuela and checks out the political prisoners

The slogan is: We want a Christmas without political prisoners

Other cities joined the strike

November 26, 2009: this Wednesday, students from Andres Bello Catholic University (UCAB), Central University of Venezuela (UCV), Simon Bolivar University (USB) and Metropolitan University (UNIMET) protested about the arrival of the Iranian president Mahmoud Ahmadinejad. Young students protested in front of the hotels Alba and Melia with slogans like: “Ahmadinejad, we don’t want you here, you kill you own people... get him out!, get him out!”, “Mahmoud, you deceitful person, you kill students.”

“Get out of our land, Ahmadinejad”

Students gathered in front of the famous hotels

Students openly reject the dictator of Iran, another bloodthirsty being

Women joined the demonstration to protest for the abused women of Iran

December 1, 2009: hundreds of demonstrators guided by the opposing Governor of Miranda Henrique Capriles Radonski protested against the regional budget cuts delivered by the regime.

A group of sick antisocial chavistas tried to stop some Governors and Mayors who oppose the regime to deliver a document to the National Assembly in protest for the budget cuts.

Sick and violent chavistas

Among the participants were the Governor of the Miranda State who organized the walk, Henrique Capriles Radonski; the Governor of the Tachira State César Perez Vivas; and the Mayor of Caracas Antonio Ledezma.

Henrique Capriles Radonski (center), César Perez Vivas (left) and Antonio Ledezma.

“We are fighting a battle for the rights of our country, building a country equal for all, without political colors and for that reason we demand a just budget” said Capriles Radonski.

Walk against budget cuts

Stop the abuse of this dictatorship

December 4, 2009: livestock farmer Franklin Brito stopped his 154 days long hunger strike in front of the Organization of American States, which he had started to protest the loss of his land to the regime which had been done wrongfully and illegally. On this date, the regime brought some documents to him, pretending they were returning the land to him but it was not true. When Brito realized that, even though the doctors told him not to, he went back on strike on the 12th accusing Chavez of corruption but was arrested and taken to the military hospital against his will.

This is Franklin Brito before the hunger strike and after he cut his own finger to protest against the regime taking his land

This is Brito at the end of the strike

December 5, 2009: students continue the hunger strike which they started on November 21, 2009 demanding the visit of the OAS. The strike ended on December 8, 2009.

“In Venezuela, ‘to think’ is a crime. I am a criminal”

“Thank you for fighting for my future”

The hunger strike continues

December 8, 2009: Students protest in Tachira.

Student kicks tear gas bomb back to the chavistas

Violation of human rights

The student Jesus Ramirez Bello, 20 years old died yesterday after he was shot on the head during the demonstrations at the Experimental University of Tachira. The sick chavistas were the attackers as usual.

This is one of the henchmen paid by the regime to shoot at innocent citizens

Same animal shooting at people with the police and National Guard's support

“ Jesus Ramirez was a victim of intolerance, victim of the regime’s tactic to turn the opposition into an enemy. Today a young Venezuelan was killed thanks to the aggressive and bellicose speech that says that in this country there will be no reconciliation, Chavez’s speech on Dec. 3, 2009. A speech that supports intolerance and violence between siblings.”

Students show disgust for the killing of Jesus Ramirez Bello. The chavista assassins were armed as usual and protected by the National Guard.

December 9 & 10, 2009: students protest about the killing of Jesus Ramirez Bello by blocking traffic on the Francisco Fajardo freeway, west bound by Las Mercedes Avenue.

To watch the video please go to:

http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=svBvKKVsKXo&feature=player_embedded

Students protest for the killing of Jesus Ramirez Bello by chavistas

Students are furious about the killing of a friend and take the streets

December 11, 2009: National Guard once more violently attacks the University of Los Andes (ULA) with the help of chavistas, henchmen paid by the regime.

As you can see, they are all the same kind... beasts

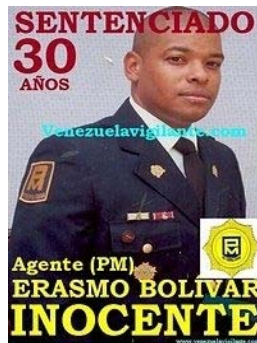

And to close the summary of the wonderful regime that has scared Venezuela for 11 years, here are the names and photos of the only “decent” officials in this country who were arrested illegally by the regime and who to this date remain in jail for protecting the right of the Venezuelan people. And the saddest part is, the chavista killers who attack anybody who opposes the regime, they are free and protected by the regime and for them there is no punishment. They are free like the wind...

Metropolitan Policemen in jail:

Inspector Hector Rovain, illegally arrested on April 21, 2003 (Ramo Verde)

Agent Erasmus Bolivar, illegally arrested on April 21, 2003 (Ramo Verde)

Dtgdo Luis Molina Cerrada, illegally arrested on April 21, 2003 (Ramo Verde)

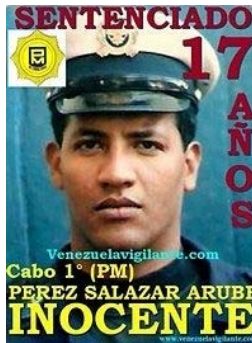

Silvio Mérida Ortiz, illegally arrested on November 6, 2003 (DISIP)

Sub.Com. Marco Hurtado, illegally arrested on April 21, 2003 (Ramo Verde)

1st Corporal Arube Perez Salazar, illegally arrested on April 21, 2003 (Ramo Verde)

Gregory Umanes

Superintendent (CTPJ) Ivan Simonovis, illegally arrested on November 22, 2004 (DISIP)

Commissioner General Henry Vivas, illegally arrested on December 3, 2004 (DISIP)

Lázaro Forero, illegally arrested on December 3, 2004 (DISIP)

Mayor Julio Rodríguez, illegally arrested on April 21, 2003 (Ramo Verde)

Military officials

Capitan Otto Gebauer, illegally arrested on February 11, 2004 (Ramo Verde)

And his amazing book:

“I saw him cry”

General Felipe Rodriguez, illegally arrested on February 6, 2005 (DISIP)

To see a list of this regime’s victims go to:

<http://ovario.wordpress.com/articulos/2000-2009-2/victimas-del-regimen-dictatorial-de-chavez/>

“It doesn’t matter if we walk around naked, it doesn’t matter if we have nothing to eat. What we are doing here is trying to save the revolution” Hugo Chavez

It is our obligation as Venezuelans to resist the oppression to want us buried and silent because we have always been a free and democratic country. It is us who have to change the history, no one else. We all know that sooner or later ALL dictators are overthrown and judged for their crimes but it is up to us to stop this national suffering. Let us stop the innocent blood shedding for a cause that has never been part of our history. Before Chavez we were the South American country with the longest democracy and we lost it. Let us try to get it back, but really try.

Today we live in a civil war in Venezuela where the war is between the innocent and disarmed citizens and the criminals or Chavez’s pack of hounds. Hundreds of people die every day and the injustice of their deaths is forgotten without the regime caring a bit. That is something the world needs to know. This article is our little grain of sand to try to open the eyes of those who ignore what this regime is doing to the Venezuelan people and also to remind those who knew about it once and maybe forgot it. Please, share it with others. Let this summary go around the world.

PROHIBIDO OLVIDAR

Ovario y Ovario II